KILLED BY THE CREW. THE FAURE FOUNTAIN.

The Captain and Mate of a Schooner Dispatched.

AN AWFUL TRAGEDY AT SEA

A Cable From Buenos Ayres to Owners the Olive Pecker Tell About the Double Murder and Burning of the Vessel.

Boston, Aug. 19.—A cable received in this city from Buenos Ayres says that Captain J. W. Whitman and Mate William Hansburgh of the schooner Olive Pecker, which sailed from this port on June 27, have been murdered by the crew.

The principal owners of the vessel are J. P. Elliott & Company of Boston, who also sent out the barkentine Herbert Fuller, on which Captain Nash and his wife and Mate Hansburgh were murdered. The Pecker was built at Belfast, Me.

The message containing the information was from a banking firm in Buenos Ayres and gave only the bare facts of the double murder, together with the statement that the vessel was afterward burned, but that the crew escaped and landed at Bahia. The owners hope they are in the custody of the United States consul there, who would naturally assume charge of the shipwrecked men.

BANKERS' CONVENTION.

Opera House Is Crowded While Eckels Is Speaking.

Detroit, Aug. 19.—The star attraction of the session of the bankers' convention was Comptroller Eckels. At the conclusion of his address he was surrounded by more than a score of members, who pressed forward to congratulate him and shake his hand.

A vote of thanks was unanimously given the young comptroller for his speech. While Mr. Eckels was speaking standing room was hardly to be had in the theater, but as soon as he had finished the audience rapidly dwindled, leaving such a wide expanse of empty seats that most of the addresses remaining on the program were put over.

This makes the list of papers for the final day of the convention a very long one.

In spite of the rainy and somewhat cold weather, the delegates boarded the steamers Pleasure and Promise and steamed up the river and across Lake St. Clair.

An elaborate lunch was provided by the Detroit entertainment committee, and the party did not reach to dock until well along toward midnight.

The following members of the executive council were chosen at a meeting held on the steamer Pleasure: Joseph P. Branch, Richmond; F. W. Hayes, Detroit; A. C. Campbell, Nashville; Miss F. G. Bigelow, Milwaukee; J. C. Hunter, Duluth.

Survey of Seal Islands.

Washington, Aug. 19.—A report has been received by Superintendent Duffield of the coast survey from the party which is surveying the fur seal islands of the Prillyoff group in the Bering sea. The party consists of eight men under the direction of William Ward Duffield, the superintendent's son. The purpose is to make a complete government survey on which to base maps of these centers of seal life. It will show not only the topography of the country, but also the shore, bays, etc., where the seals make their homes. Mr. Duffield stated in his report that seals were being killed in considerable numbers. He witnessed two slaughters.

Keeps His Plans.

Fairmont, W. Va., Aug. 19.—Organizer Rea refuses to disclose his plans but says the miners will be ably represented at the hearing at Clarksburg. The miners arrested came before Judge Nathan Goff at Clarksburg, being represented by John J. Davis, Jr. Judge Goff remanded the men to jail as they could not give bond, and 10 o'clock was set as the time of their hearing. Squad after squad of men from the mines of the region have joined the men at Camp O'Donnell. The wives of the Monongahela men also joined them. There are 500 or more in camp and the tents have been turned over to the women, the men sleeping on the ground.

Tip From a Convict.

Columbus, O., Aug. 19.—In a letter written to a New York crook Richard Francis Paul Kent, a Montgomery county burglar, claims to know the person who wrote the scurrilous letters to Miss Wilson, now Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr. He says the author is a rich club man.

Death Sentences Confirmed.

Madrid, Aug. 19.—The supreme council of war and the cabinet have confirmed the sentence of death by the garrote imposed on Angiolillo, the assassin of Premier Canovas del Castillo, by court martial at Vergara on Monday last.

MEDALS AS GIFTS TO GUARDS

Before the Chief Executive of France Departs on His Visit to St. Petersburg He Reviews the Naval Squadron.

Paris, Aug. 19.—Among magnificent decorations prepared for the occasion of the visit of M. Faure to St. Petersburg is a very handsome fountain, to be known as the Faure fountain, constructed in the middle of the historic Kazan square. It is destined to remain as a permanent memorial of the visit of the president of the French republic to the czar of all the Russias. President Faure takes with him 300 medals in gold and platinum, 80 medals of silver gilt and 20 of dual gold, all of which have been especially struck for presentation to the Russian guard of honor, which will attend this president during his stay in Russia, and to the various Russian officials who will be in attendance upon the chief magistrate of France.

These medals bear on one side the profile of an eagle of the republic and the words "Republique Française." On the obverse side of the medals is a wreath of laurels surrounding the date, "August, 1897."

Reviewed the French Navy.

Dunkirk, Aug. 19.—President Faure arrived here at 1 p. m. and was accorded an ovation. Later the president and his suite embarked on board the French warship Potemau. M. Faure then reviewed the French squadron at anchor here and as soon as this ceremony was completed the Potemau put to sea, followed by the Surcouf and Reux, which will escort her to Cross-stadt.

Bomb Exploded.

London, Aug. 19.—A dispatch to The Pall Mall Gazette from Paris says that the bomb which was exploded at the corner of the Boulevard Magenta and the Rue Lafayette shortly after President Faure had passed there on his way to Russia, contained a number of bullets a quarter of an inch in diameter in addition to the nails. A milk jug carried by a passing girl was shattered.

IOWA REPUBLICANS.

Hon. L. W. Shaw Selected as Standard-Bearer After a Hard Contest.

Cedar Rapids, Ia., Aug. 19.—The nomination of the Hon. L. M. Shaw of Crawford county as the standard bearer of the Hawkeye Republicans in the coming campaign ended one of the most protracted and interesting contests in the history of Iowa politics.

Almost a dozen active candidates for the gubernatorial nomination were in the field when delegates began to arrive but most of them dropped out one by one, Shaw gaining on each withdrawal until four ballots had been taken, when the nomination was made unanimous.

There were spirited but short-lived contests over the other offices, and after the adoption without a dissenting vote of the report of the committee on resolutions, the convention adjourned sine die shortly after 6 p. m.

The remainder of the ticket is as follows: Supreme Judge, Judge Waterman of Scott county; railroad commissioner, C. L. Davidson of Sioux county; superintendent of instruction, H. H. Barrett of Mitchell county.

Decline in Silver.

New York, Aug. 19.—A further decline in the price of silver occurred, the quotation for bar silver in New York receding to 52 1/2 cents an ounce, a decline of 1 1/2 cents. The London quotation for bar silver was 24 1/2 pence, a fall of 9-16 of a penny. The prices were lowest records up to that date. Quotations for Mexican dollars were only nominal at 41 cents.

O'Connell Wins.

Cincinnati, Aug. 19.—O'Connell, W. J. Spier's great sprinter, made his first appearance at Newport and won the third race of the day in a gallop. He covered three-quarters of a mile in 1:14. O'Connell holds the world's record for the same distance on a circular track, but he has not raced for nearly two years.

New York Wool Exchange.

New York, Aug. 19.—The first public sale of wool at the exchange was held when the equivalent of 3,560,000 pounds domestic and foreign wools were offered. The attendance was very large and included wool dealers and manufacturers from all parts of the country.

St. Louis Wants It.

New Haven, Aug. 19.—St. Louis has put in her bid for the next annual convention of the International Association of Fire Engineers, and the yellow badges with the inscription "Old Boomer among the visiting fire chiefs," St. Louis, 1898, were more conspicuous among the visiting fire chiefs than either the white ribbon of Florida, Fla., or the blue of Utah, N. Y.

LABOR'S FRIEND—NOT THIS YEAR.

BOMB EXPLODES.

Several Attempts to Use Explosives Failed at Constantinople.

Constantinople, Aug. 19.—The city is almost in a panic over the news of bomb explosions attempted or accomplished at three different points. The explosions are attributed to the Armenians.

At 3 p. m. a bomb was thrown just outside the police headquarters in the Pera district. It failed to explode. Almost at the same moment an Armenian whose name, it is believed, is Garavbet, was arrested at the Imperial Ottoman bank in the Galata district. He was carrying a package of explosives which he was trying to ignite.

A second bomb was exploded in a private road between the vizierate (offices of the grand vizier) and the state council house. One man was killed and several others were severely injured. The explosion shattered windows in the vicinity and did other slight damage.

The police have made a number of arrests. Reports of the outrages spread quickly through the city and caused the greatest excitement. The police and the guards at the Sultan's palace are making extraordinary precautions, which have given color to a rumor that the bomb-throwing is a part of a widespread plot.

The most object terror prevails in the precincts of the palace. In many parts of the city, particularly in the vicinity of the police headquarters and the state council house, all the shops were closed and it was necessary to call out the entire police force and the military before anything like calm was restored.

The police are very reticent as to the reason for summoning the palace guard and closing all the doors and gateways.

AGAINST THE MINERS.

Present Tactics of the Strikers Are Forbidden.

NO MARCHING OR CAMPING.

The Operators Decide to Start Their Mines With or Without Force, as the Occasion Requires. A Crisis at Hand.

Pittsburg, Aug. 19.—This was operators' day, and from present appearances they have made a most effective move and have nearly, if not quite checkmated their opponents, the striking coal miners.

The court's decree in making permanent the preliminary injunction restraining the strikers from camping, marching or in any manner interfering with the New York and Cleveland Gas Coal company's miners has had the effect of almost depleting the camps about those mines, and apparently a general demoralization among the campers exists.

In order to follow up their advantage, the operators held a largely attended meeting at the Monongahela House and arranged for the starting of their mines with or without force.

May Use Force. It is the intention to start a certain few mines at once under the protection of deputies, and whatever expense may result will be shared pro rata by the mine owners.

This scheme to start the mines was adopted to break the national strike in 1894. The operators then agreed to bear the expense and two mines were put in operation and the men were guarded by deputies. The miners selected were the Manown of the Youghiogheny Gas Coal company, and the Durr mine of Osborne, Seeger & Company. At the former mine 18 railroad cars were loaded the first day.

It was expensive coal, but when the bills were settled no operator could be found to tell what that coal cost. But it had the desired effect.

Dolan on the Situation.

President Dolan of the miners' organization does not believe the movement will be a success this time, as the strikers are more in earnest than in any former struggle. "The operators now talk about their inability to pay the advance on account of having said he. 'When they made those contracts they were fairly warned that a higher rate would be demanded. We called for conference and told them not to make any contracts based on the low rate for digging. So that there could be no possibility of a misunderstanding we issued a public notice and had it printed in the daily papers.

"They were told plainly not to make contracts based on a 54 cent mining rate. We did not take any advantage of them, for they knew what was coming. When I spoke of a strike they merely laughed and said, 'We will have you starved out in two weeks.' They now see where they were mistaken, and want to start, but they will not succeed. We will establish a camp and march at every mine where the attempt is made to operate. We will fight to the bitter end.

Camps Deserted.

Camp Determination at Turtle Creek was reduced in numbers from 200 to 50. The men who were told to go home gathered in an angry crowd and denounced the officials bitterly. Secretary William Warner came in for a large share of vituperation from the crowd. They demanded of him work or assistance. He replied rather curtly that he would get them jobs in the workhouse.

After Warner left a number of the men threatened to return to their respective homes and go to work in their respective mines. They said the strike was a fizzle.

Uriah Billingham, in charge of the camp at Plum Creek, put a damper on the campers at that place. He had just returned from the city where he heard the court's decision in the injunction case. He told the men there would be no more marching and no need of such a large number of men at the camp. He advised the men to disperse to their respective homes and get work wherever they could. At this camp, where there were 800 men, there are now less than 100.

It is said the men who are still in the camp will remain there and will march as usual in spite of the sheriff and the court's order. President Dolan said that his men would continue to march, and if the sheriff arrested them, other men would take their places at once. He said: "The sheriff will have to do his duty if he violates the law and arrest us. If he is of the opinion that we are violators he will have to take us to jail and punish us like any other criminal.

"I sent an order to all of the camps to continue the marching on the same peaceable lines that we have been following, and I am willing to abide by the result. We do not intend to give up an inch of what we have gained. If we are arrested we will go quietly and submit to whatever punishment is dealt out to us, provided it is proven that we have broken the law. We do not wish to swerve the sheriff from the line of his duty."

The small showing of men at the camps has apparently encouraged the De Arantes and it is expected they will make the attempt to start their mines in full at once.

A meeting of miners from the Muckler mines waited on Superintendent R. G. Dickson of the Muckler mine of J. B. Corry, and asked him if he would open the mine if the men returned at the 54 cent rate. He said he would not, and the mines would not be opened until the next lake season.

PINKERTON MEN

Will Be Engaged by the Operators to Protect New Men.

Cleveland, Aug. 19.—The decision reached by the operators of the Pittsburgh district at their conference here to open their mines regardless of the rate, 54 cent or 50 cent, has serious consequences which probably cause serious trouble. According to local coal men it is the intention of the Pittsburgh operators to engage Pinkerton men to protect their operation men.

This action on their part will probably precipitate a terrible climax to the great strike, and the operators admit that blood will probably flow. In speaking of the probable result of the operators' decision, Loftis Cuddy of the Cuddy-Mullen Coal company said: "If it is found necessary to do so, a whole army of detectives will be employed to protect our men, and if the worst comes they will be supplied with Gatling guns and other equipments to convince the strikers that we mean business. There will be no delay in inaugurating this movement, and the first step will be taken Thursday, although I do not care to state what the first action will be."

Mr. Cuddy's statement is upheld by J. P. Zerbe, president of the Ohio and Pennsylvania Coal company.

Will Favor Silver.

Philadelphia, Aug. 19.—Democratic State Chairman John M. Garman and ex-Congressman and ex-State Chairman James Kerr are in the city. In speaking of the Democratic state convention to be held in Reading on the 31st inst. Mr. Garman said: "The convention will overwhelmingly reaffirm allegiance to the Chicago platform, and if a resolution declaring Mr. Harvity's seat vacant in the national committee is presented it will be adopted."

Receivers Appointed.

Boston Aug. 19.—Judge Lathrop of the supreme court appointed as temporary receivers of the Massachusetts Benefit Life association Alfred Woodworth, president of the Eagle National bank of this city, and Arthur Lord of Salem. Bonds in the sum of $25,000 each will be required. A temporary injunction has been issued restraining the company from doing further business. The order is returnable Sept. 3.

Departure of North Fork.

San Francisco, Aug. 19.—The steamer North Fork, with the stern wheel steamer Mare Island in tow left for St. Michaels after having been delayed for several days after the departure was announced. She carried 83 passengers and was heavily laden with supplies. A large crowd witnessed her departure and a scene of great enthusiasm ensued.

Naval Reserve Boat Sunk.

New Orleans, Aug. 19.—The former government boat, John A. Dix, recently turned over to the Louisiana naval reserve sank at the foot of Jackson street.

THE POOR OYSTER.

A source of Epidemics of Typhoid Fever, Says a Physician.

It is gratifying to know that the filthy bivalve the oyster, whose proper function in the world is the consumption of the ooze and slime which cover the bottom of the ocean and the stems of submarine plants, is rapidly creating such a bad reputation for itself that there is already a prospect that its consumption as an article of food may be practically abandoned.

It has long been known that the consumption of the oyster not infrequently gives rise to severe illness. A few years ago an eminent surgeon in Chicago died as the result of consuming a few raw oysters. It is more recently, however, that the fact has been made clear—and it has been established beyond the possibility of a doubt—that the oyster is a common source of epidemics of typhoid fever. The British Medical Journal has been particularly active in making this fact known to the public, as the result of which it is claimed by the leading oyster companies of Great Britain that there has been a decrease in the consumption of oysters amounting to three-fourths—that is, the quantity required to meet the demand at the present time is only one-fourth that of three or four years ago.

In their anxiety to save their business from utter ruin the oyster companies have appealed to sanitary authorities for relieving suggestions. Professor Herdman of Liverpool comes forward with the suggestion that oysters received from foreign parts should, like cattle, be subjected to quarantine for from one to four weeks and also suggests that no one should think of consuming oysters without subjecting them to at least one day's washing in a stream of water running from a tap. It is not claimed, however, that any of these measures will entirely obliterate typhoid fever and other poisoning germs, but only to some degree diminish them.

The companies are, of course, laboring earnestly to regenerate their rapidly failing business, and it is accordingly proposed that the government shall appoint oyster inspectors, whose duty it shall be to make careful investigation of the bivalves offered for sale in the English markets—to examine their mouths and look at their tongues, so to speak—and ascertain whether there remain behind any of the filthy germs which they have been in the habit of swallowing in the pursuit of their life.

It must be clear to any one that to provide for the inspection of every oyster—the only method by which complete safety could be obtained—would be altogether too expensive a process, and one which can never be adopted. Consequently it is pretty certain that, however successfully the public alarm may be quieted for the time being, it will develop sooner or later as the result of new outbreaks, and it is to be earnestly hoped that the ultimate result will be the repudiation of the oyster as an article of diet, the germ bivalve being left alone to pursue unmolested the avocation allotted him by nature.

From Teaspoon to Walt Whitman.

MY DEAR WALT WHITMAN—I am not overfond of letter writing. Am so overburdened with correspondence that I regret half of it. I am very glad to hear that you are so improved in health, and that you move about the fields and woods freely and have enjoyment of your life. As for myself, I am pretty well for my time of life, but somewhat troubled about my eyes, for I am not only short sighted, but have great black spots floating in each eye, and this blackness increases with increasing years. My son Lionel was married to the daughter of F. Lecker, the author of "London Lyrics," in February. The wedding was celebrated in our old grand historical abbey of Westminster. There was a grand attendance of literati, of which I read an account in one of your New York papers—every third word a "Tribune" wrote me this morning stating that you wished to have a parody of yourself which appeared among other parodies of modern authors in a paper called London. I have not a copy of it, otherwise I would send it you. Yours ever, A. TENNYSON.

—From "Walt Whitman the Man," by Thomas Donaldson.

Forgiveness.

One night at dinner the head of the house was served to what looked and tasted like a most delicious and delicate plum pudding. He ate one plate of it with infinite gusto and asked for more. Then his wife was foolish enough to exclaim, "And what do you suppose it is made of?" He could not guess that it contained any unusual component part, only that it was "by ordinary" good. "It's made of carrots," she cried. He laid down his fork and refused to touch another morsel. This was rank prejudice, for the pudding was perfect. It was made of 2 cups of grated carrot, one-half cup fine sugar, 4 tablespoons brown sugar, 8 tablespoons flour, one-half pound raisins, one-half pound currants, a salt-spoon salt, a teaspoon mace. Boil for 4 hours and bake 30 minutes. And don't tell what it is made of.

Massachusetts Savings Banks.

In fifty years of the existence of savings banks in Massachusetts they have had under their control the enormous sum of $2,100,000,000. They still control upward of $500,000,000, and yet the entire loss to depositors in this half century, chargeable to fraud, fault or error, has been less than $2,000,000.

"BUSINESS METHODS."

It was the boast of the Hanna management of the McKinley campaign that it was run on business methods. Not a dollar was paid out except on a voucher so that the management knew exactly where every dollar went. It had been the complaint of previous committees that large amounts were obtained and presumably spent where the money "would do the most good," but that the results were not commensurate with the outlay and the balance sheet at the end of the campaign showed a large deficit. Chairman Hanna knew how things were done to bring about this unsatisfactory condition. He had discovered in local political campaigns how much of the money intended to be distributed in certain proportions mysteriously disappeared on the way, to the disappointment of those for whom it was intended and the annoyance of the management, while the go-betweens were averse to investigation into the mystery. The national committee chairman determined there should be none of this under his campaign management. The money he collected from Republican business men for Republican "business purposes" should be spent in strictly business methods. It is not "business" to pay out money without a voucher showing who received it. He could not see why political purchases should not be made in the same manner as mercantile purchases, and he insisted on this being done. The result proved his wisdom. The goods were bought and delivered and at the end of the transaction the accounts were audited with a voucher for every expenditure. Better yet, there was for the first time in the party's history a large sum in the bank after all bills were paid.

As one of the utmost importance to the party and the administration that the election in Ohio this year should go the same way as the national election last year. A defeat in the president's home state the year after his election would be a direct condemnation of the administration. The rejection of Mr. Hanna as senator would add emphasis to the rebuke, because Mr. Hanna is the personal champion of McKinley, as well as the champion of the Republican administration. Personal pride, friendship for the president, and regard for the party welfare unite to impel Mr. Hanna to make every effort to carry Ohio this fall as it was carried last year. "Business methods" are therefore to be again brought into play. Major Dick was the personal representative of chairman Hanna in last year's national campaign. He occupies the same position in Mr. Hanna's Ohio campaign this year. The little transaction with Messrs. Taylor and Preyer shows that the campaign is being run on strictly business methods. No money is paid out without a voucher showing where it went. Rev. Mr. Taylor and Hugo Preyer swear they each received $25 from Major Dick after conferences with him concerning the Populist convention then yet to be held. Major Dick says Mr. Taylor "never received a check from me and I never gave or promised him a dollar to control his political conduct." Mr. Taylor says Major Dick filled out a check for $25 to his order and then offered to cash it for him. Mr. Taylor informed the check and got the money. Mr. Taylor did not "receive the check," but merely informed it as it lay on the desk of Mr. Hanna's confidential political agent. Major Dick does not deny that he gave Mr. Taylor the $25 in cash, but merely says he "never gave or promised him a dollar to control his political conduct." What did he give him the $25 for? Is Major Dick running a benevolent organization that loans money to whoever asks for it, and without security?

Then there is that "loan" of $25 to Hugo Preyer. Major Dick was not acquainted with Mr. Preyer, but was anxious to know him. Mr. Taylor brought them together. Was it for this service Mr. Taylor was paid his $25 and not to "control his political conduct." In that case the whole $50 may be chargeable to Mr. Preyer's supposed importance as a political factor. Senator Hanna's factotum met Mr. Preyer and they had a conference on political matters. Mr. Preyer, according to Major Dick, "explained his views in the matter of a middle-of-the-road ticket." After that Mr. Preyer applied for $25, and Major Dick promptly sent it, as "a personal loan." Curiously enough the Preyer check, like the Taylor check, was on a Washington bank—the Republican national campaign fund is on deposit in Washington—and was drawn "to order." If Mr. Preyer should get his check cashed Major Dick will have the vouchers for $50 expended to show national chairman Hanna when he returns from Lake Superior, in the two checks with the indorsements of Messrs. Taylor and Preyer.

Certainly the Republican campaign in Ohio, or at least the Hanna part of it, is being run on "business methods." For every purchase there is to be a voucher.—Plain Dealer.

The Right to Live.

Men are no longer killed at sight or sacrificed to the gods, as they were at the dawn of history. They are given the right to live, but are not hunger, thirst and exposure as certain means of dealing death to men as the old-time bludgeons? Hundreds now die from these sources, while we say that men have advanced and have the "right to live," and to slay a man is murder, but this right to live is not fully made out yet. Our civilization can fully settle this right by the full establishment of the right to work and so provide means as the result of labor to prevent death from thirst, hunger and exposure. These are grave questions and belong under the teachings of our "Magna Charta," "Life, Liberty and the Pursuit of Happiness." Hundreds of miners and their dependents are suffering today. Many die of exposure and hunger. How will these questions be settled?—Middletown Daily Journal.

Hanna's Side Shows.

How Hanna has in contemplation the organizing of several little side parties, to which he thinks he can draw those friendly to silver who do not belong to the Democratic party. But if he does he will find himself badly fooled on election day, for the friends of the silver dollar propose to stand together until that dollar is restored to its old place. Mr. Hanna's boss-ship only extends to the Republican party. The friends of silver will tolerate no boss.—Tiffin Advertiser.

TWELFTH ENCAMPMENT

Of the Union Veterans' Union Held at Springfield.

Springfield, O. Aug. 19.—The twelfth national encampment of the Union Veterans opened here. The attendance was smaller than expected, which the national officers charge to the failure of railroads to keep their agreement as to reduced rates. Several New England delegations turned back after they reached New York. Addresses of welcome were delivered by Mayor John M. Good, ex-Speaker J. Warren Keffer, and responses by Commander-in-Chief Charles W. Wood, Worcester, Mass.; Colonel Samuel R. Stratton, Washington, D. C.; General Thomas T. Heath, Cincinnati; Colonel John Synnwood, Portsmouth, N. H.; General N. L. Brown, department of Indiana; Mrs. Hortense White, president of the national W. V. R. U., and Mother Stewart.

A review was held and two parrot wings on the esplanade were dedicated, General Keffer making the presentation address. The national Women's Veterans Relief union met today.

A strong effort is being made to take the next encampment to Rock Island, Ill. Candidates for commander-in-chief for the ensuing year are General James A. Dicus, commander of the department of Ohio, and General H. L. Street, Washington.

Franchise Will Be Taxed.

Frankfort, Ky., Aug. 19.—The state board of valuation, now in session, admit that they will carry out their intention to assess a franchise tax against all corporations organized in this state, whether owning property and operating here or not. This catches the Southern Pacific Railway company for this and five back years, and means that the board will demand of it 52½ cents yearly on every $100 of a franchise valued up in the millions.

Golli Has Relatives in New York.

New York, Aug. 19.—Antonio Rosi, who is employed in a Franklin street restaurant, is a cousin by marriage to Golli, the assassin who shot and killed Premier Canovas of Spain. Rosi's wife is a first cousin of Golli, the latter's mother being a sister to the mother of Mrs. Rosi. Notwithstanding their relationship to the man condemned to be garroted for having caused Premier Canovas' death, they do not believe in anarchy.

Stricken in the Pulpit.

Zanesville, O., Aug. 19.—Rev. George W. Hissey was brought here in an unconscious state, and his death is momentarily expected. He was conducting a religious service at a small place called Lester, and in the middle of the sermon suddenly lost his power of speech. Shortly afterward he became unconscious, and it is thought he can survive but a short time.

Will Not Come to America.

New York, Aug. 19.—Lord Howke, who recently accepted an invitation extended to him by the representatives of the Associated Cricket clubs of Philadelphia to bring a cricket club to this country in September, has been compelled to break the engagement and has cancelled the arrangements made.

Died in a Closet.

Columbiana, O., Aug. 19.—David Sechrist was found dead in a closet at the home of his wife in this city, where he had ended his life by taking poison. He deserted his family some years ago, leaving them in destitute circumstances, and was never permitted to return to live with them.

Whisky Merchant Shot.

Louisville, Aug. 19.—Max Wiley, a clerk for Bernheim Brothers, whisky merchants, was shot and fatally wounded by Joe C. Kouwenbergh, a gauger. The shooting occurred in the store where Kouwenbergh had his office, and was the result of an old grudge.

Trust Companies' Meeting.

Detroit, Aug. 19.—The first annual meeting of the trust company section of the American Bankers' association was held at the Hotel Cadillac. Incomplete returns show that the capital stock of the trust companies in the United States is $224,806,000.

Your Dressing is just the thing it covers wear on machinery, and with it we can run a belt that would tear in two if we had to make it tight enough to hold without the Dressing. AMONG THE RAILROADS.

NOTES.

Engines 7 and 250 are in the shops for repairs.

Fireman Cliff Roberts, of the C. H. & D., is laying off.

Engineer P. J. Dolan, of the C. H. & D., is on the sick list.

Fireman Fred Smith, of the C. H. & D., is laid up by sickness.

C. H. & D. engines 321 and 350 are in the shop receiving repairs.

Engineer Tony Kemper, of the C. H. & D., is spending a few days on the lakes.

Engineer Dan Bowyer, of the C. H. & D., is enjoying an outing on the lakes.

Assistant traveling passenger agent McCord, of the C. H. & D., is in the city to-day.

Brakeman Ed Huber, of the T. E. & W., is laying off. Brakeman C. E. Davis is working in his place.

Brakeman Smith, of the L. E. & W., is laying off. Brakeman Hartnagle is working in his place.

A barber named Estus was arrested last night, for creating a disturbance at Sieber's saloon on south Main street.

Traveling freight agent Hackett and traveling passenger agent Morrison, of the C. & D., were in the city to-day.

W. S. Freeman, of Lima, will occupy the position of check clerk at the L. E. & W. for several weeks.—Findlay Republican.

Engineer A. D. James, of the C. & E., who is now running a switch engine in the yards at Marion, was in the city yesterday.

In about ten days the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton will have its traction line between Middleton, O., and Hamilton in operation.

The Santa Fe is equipping fifty of its passenger cars with electric storage batteries. This is said to be the first attempt at lighting ordinary cars with electricity.

Switchman George James, of the C. & E., who, together with switchman Walter Gordon, was assaulted by a drunken tramp on the night of July 30, has resumed his duties in the night yards. Switchman Gordon will report for work this evening.

The Detroit & Lima Northern railroad yesterday brought nearly thirteen hundred people into the city. The trains bearing the people were crowded even to the first step on the platform. The greater part of these were excursionists from Leipsic and intermediate points.

For the month of June the Railroad Gazette reports ninety-five accidents, in which forty-five persons were killed and 127 injured. In forty cases the causes of the accidents were collisions. The only Indiana line which suffered any important damages was the Vandalia, in a collision at Vandalia, Ill.

Conductors C. E. Jeffries and Frank Strohl and engineers Eugene Martin and Frank Lewis, with engines 120 and 59 respectively, had charge of the two sections of the Buffalo Bill train from here to Findlay last night.

Traveling engineer Miller returned to Cincinnati this morning. He has been in Lima several days conducting an examination of firemen, with a view to promotion. Of the number examined one-half passed. The questions were not technical, but only those questions were put which every man should know before taking charge of an engine. Many firemen are now sorry that they neglected attending the school of instruction which Mr. Miller started here a few months ago, as the instruction in that school was in line with this examination. The school was at first well attended but it soon became old and the attendance dropped off, and as the school was conducted merely for the benefit of the firemen, and as they took no interest in it, it was stopped. The firemen are now lamenting what they lost.

London as a Ruin.

The bishop of London professes to be grieved because London would not make a picturesque ruin. In a sermon at St. Paul's, Knightsbridge, his lordship rather took the conceit out of Londoners by asserting that they would not make nearly such a fine corpse collectively as some other great cities. He said that Londoners were very proud of their material civilization, but it was nothing to that of Rome, with its splendid system of law, its great buildings and its beautiful streets. If London ever became a desert, its ruins would be less imposing than were those of Rome, Babylon or Nineveh.

To this the London Daily Mail responds: "But did Dr. Creighton remember how many of the wonders of Nineveh are now themselves in London and available, therefore, as ruins as any? As Rossetti said in his fine poem, 'The Burden of Nineveh,' those winged bulls which attest the colossal scale of the Assyrian builders may one day pass themselves off as 'ruins now of London, not of Nineveh.'"

Results of Sanitation.

In a lecture on what sanitation has done for human life Professor Brewer of Yale university remarks that no one doubts the fact of human life having been prolonged by the application of science in the last 50 years, though the data in figures can never be obtained. This century came in without a single city in Christendom having 1,000,000 inhabitants. Great cities could not endure them. First, the people could not be fed, for most of the population had to be fed and food produced within 20 miles of the place of consumption, but science has now made it possible to transport food half way around the globe and has discovered new methods of preservation as well. Nor was city population self-perpetuating—men died off, the death rate was continually high, and from time to time there were the ravages of pestilence, and even where there were sewers they were to drain the ground of water rather than to carry away sewage.

Antiseptic Surgery.

The medical value of cleanliness has not been fully appreciated until the past few years. Indeed it is scarcely allowed its full importance. There are yet in the medical profession men who seem to forget that cleanliness is often of quite as much importance as a dentist, with a tolerable practice, recently demonstrated his right to be called a back number by a most objectionable performance, and one of which he is no doubt guilty every day of his life. In giving gas he used a cork attached to a string to keep the patient's jaws apart while the gas was being administered. The cork was dirty covered with the marks of god knows how many teeth. It was with saliva, and yet this doctor, precisely in this condition, introduced a patient who wished teeth extracted. Such an act as should bar any man from practice. If there is no article better than a cork to keep the jaws apart, then the cork at least ought to be cleaned in some way after each time of using.—New York Ledger.

Could Stand the Strain No Longer.

A woman who was traveling alone not long ago wandered one evening into a hotel parlor. A pretty young girl at once rushed toward her and breathlessly asked what time it was. Somewhat astonished, the woman glanced at the big mantel clock and repeated the hour. "Oh, thank you!" said the stranger, but without any signs of going away. "I suppose you think it queer, my asking that," she burst out a moment later, "but to tell the truth I didn't want to know the time at all. I just had to speak to somebody. You see, I'm on my wedding trip, and for a whole week I haven't spoken to a soul but my husband. Why, I've hardly heard the sound of any one's voice but his. It was really a question of my speaking to some one or going wild."—Kansas City Star.

Schools of Painting.

The Munich Jugend has discovered five new signs by which to detect the school to which a painter belongs. (1) If he paints the sky gray and the grass green, he belongs to the good old classical school. (2) If he paints the sky blue and the grass green, he is a realist. (3) If he paints the sky green and the grass blue, he is an impressionist. (4) If he paints the sky yellow and the grass purple, he is a colorist. (5) If he paints the sky black and the grass red, he is a painter of great decorative talent.

Like Hags or Like Gentlemen?

Years ago, when it was more the fashion in Kansas than at present, United States Attorney Bill Perry gave a stag party to his gentlemen friends at Fort Scott. He had procured a bountiful supply of cold beer for the delectation of his guests, but hid it away in an upper room as a postprandial surprise. When the proper time arrived for the revelation of his surprise, he said to the assembled company:

"Boys, I have a lot of cold beer up stairs, but before we start I want to know whether you intend to drink like gentlemen or like hags?"

"Oh, we'll drink like gentlemen. Lead on, Billy," chorused a dozen voices in reply.

"That settles it," replied the jovial host as a smile rippled over all three of his double chins. "I'll have to send for more beer. A hog always knows when he's got enough."—Kansas City Journal.

MARKETING THE HONEY.

A Chicago Dealer's Advice—Cultivating the Honey Market.

The work now will be a disposition of the honey crop. With a view to assisting to satisfactory returns, The American Bee Journal interviewed one of the largest Chicago honey dealers on the marketing of a large honey crop. Following is brief what this honey dealer said:

Don't rush your honey into a market already well supplied and thus help to lower prices for yourself as well as those who will ship after you do. Here is a good rule to follow: Never ship honey to a dealer without first writing him as to the condition of the market and for some idea as to what price may be realized. Find out whether or not your honey is wanted at all in a certain market. We have actually known beekeepers to ship their honey to a commission man who was overloaded without first writing and then expect to realize the top price.

Investigate several markets before shipping and find out where you can likely do the best. We think, if the beekeepers are a little careful and don't get in too big a hurry to realize on their honey all at once, even though the crop is large, a fairly good price will be secured. But if you can anywhere get 12 or more cents per pound net for your white comb honey and 6 or 7 cents for extracted in a wholesale way we would say, "Take it quick"—that is, if we were going to advise you. But, understand, we are not advising about that at all. Each must do as he thinks best.

Following is the editor's advice on the subject of the home market: Cultivating the home market will pay this year in many localities. The large city honey markets will be relieved of any glut just in proportion as a large or small amount of the crop is distributed in the home or local market. Remember it is ever so much better to take a less price for your honey near home—and get that price—than to ship it away to an overloaded market and perhaps be compelled to take little or nothing for it after paying freight charges, dealer's commission, leakage, breakage, etc.

Building Corncribs.

Building corncribs is now in order, and a leaf from the experience of a farmer who has built many cribs may prove of value. A correspondent of Prairie Farmer says: A crib should be at least a foot from the ground, so the cats can have a chance to get at the rats and mice. Whether you keep dogs and cats or not, the vermin will not trouble half as bad if the crib sets well up from the ground. If you build a crib, be thorough as far as you go. You may not build expensive ones unless you choose, but they must be solid to be durable. A corncrib must have some kind of a foundation that will not settle. Then put on three 6 by 6 sills lengthwise. On these lay 2 by 6 floor sleepers two feet apart. For studding use nothing less than 2 by 6, two feet apart. These must be wired. Put the wires on loose and the corn will tighten them all right. The studding should be 10 feet on the low side and 12 on the other will be right unless you are building a double crib. In a moist country a crib 8 feet wide is right. Here we have them 10 or 12 wide. Have the rafters 3 by 4 and cover with boards. There is no need of shingles or battings for ear corn in this part of the country.

The Small Grain Harvest.

The Orange Judd Farmer says that "western farmers are highly encouraged with the splendid small grain harvests of the Mississippi and Missouri valleys. Oklahoma, which a few years ago began to raise wheat on a small scale, is now credited with a crop all the way up to 25,000,000 and 30,000,000 bushels, which is selling direct from the thrasher at relatively good prices. Kansas has perhaps harvested the best wheat crop, with one exception, in its history, and this is essentially true of Nebraska. States east of the Missouri, with the exception of parts of Illinois, are also turning off good yields of wheat, while in Minnesota and the two Dakotas the prospect continues brilliant."

Remedy For All Kinds of Lice.

Lice have been very troublesome on trees as well as vegetables this year, judging from reports of correspondents and our own observations. For all kinds of lice (aphides) strong tobacco tea or kerosene emulsion is an effective remedy. As the insects work on the underside of the leaf, the liquid should be thrown with considerable force from beneath. Since the leaves curl up after the pests have worked on them for some time, the spraying is most effective if applied as soon as the lice are discovered.—Farm Journal.

Dwarf Trees.

To produce dwarf trees the Chinese farmers confine the roots within a small iron bound cask, or the more rapid method is to select a vigorous branch upon the desired tree and bind around it a band of leaf mold. This is kept moist until roots creep into the mold, then the branch is severed from the tree. Soon flowers and fruit develop, for their buds were formed by the parent tree.

Green Food For Swine.

Farmers who have swine to feed during the early winter ought to have green food for them. The American Swineherd advises Jerusalem artichokes and winter rye as the best. In the northwest green oats, green wheat, rye or barley, with the artichokes, letting the hogs gather the crops, will be found to work well in securing large growth at small cost.

PARTIAL SOILING.

Advantages of This System Enumerated by a Successful Ohio Farmer.

Perhaps the greatest advantage in partial soiling, when viewed from the dollar standpoint, is the great saving of land. Many farmers who have never given this subject any thought are slow to believe this, but it is well known to every one that an acre of good clover and timothy well cured into hay will furnish rough feed for a horse or cow for the five or six months of winter; that it requires more feed to keep an animal in cold than in warm weather, that it requires two or three acres to furnish good pasture for the animal all summer, and then the supply is precarious should the weather be very dry. Every authority to which I have had access agrees that an acre of soiling crops is equal to about three of pasture. My own experience of about seven years leads me to believe that this is quite correct. Thus writes an Ohio correspondent of Country Gentleman. Following are additional extracts from his communication:

This saving of land alone will pay for cutting and feeding the crops. If it is true that one acre of soiling crops is worth three of pasture—the question of pay hinges on this—will the rent of two acres of fertile, high priced land pay for cutting and feeding out the soiling crops grown on one acre? Certainly no man who thinks he has not land enough should hesitate for a moment to practice soiling, partial soiling at least, instead of trying to rent or buy more land.

There are many other reasons in favor of this method of feeding live stock, only one of which I shall mention in this article. It is a well known fact that the comfort of any animal has a great influence on its general health and thrift. The animal that has no other supply of food than that obtained from a short pasture, that must hunt almost night and day for a scanty supply of food, that is exposed to the burning sun and tormented by flies, cannot pay its owner much dividend either in milk or growth. How different with the one that has an abundance of succulent food placed before it and still has the liberties of a pasture field!

This system of partial soiling is one of the main things that helped the writer to get out of debt, to make a good farm out of a piece of worthless swamp, to make some improvements each year and to live better and enjoy more of life.

Cover Crop For Orchards.

Last fall, at the Geneva experiment station, was an apple orchard containing a "cover crop" of buckwheat and peas. Professor Beach was pleased with this combination for sowing in young orchards. Buckwheat covers the ground and makes a vigorous growth until frost comes, as Rural New Yorker explains. When this grain is used, the ground is moist and in a good, friable condition, not becoming so dry and hard as it does when other cereals are used. One object in sowing buckwheat with the peas was to keep the latter up off the ground so that they would be less liable to attack by mildew. The mixture was found especially useful on hard clay knolls, but it does not live through the winter like the clovers. In one sense this is not an objection, for spring culture is easier when the crop dies down. A combination of winter vetch and winter rye has given excellent satisfaction as a late crop sown in orchards. The indications are that some combination of a legume and a cereal will give better results than either crop used alone.

American Butter In England.

The efforts of Secretary of Agriculture Wilson to enlarge the English market for the best American butter have not yet been wholly successful. The market demands better almost fresh or but slightly salted and must have it put up in cubical boxes instead of tubs, and these must weigh 56 or 112 pounds each. He finds our consuls a little bit cranky about butter, and if they take it at the best prices it must be put up expressly for export, says The Farm Journal, which also calls attention to an enlarged foreign outlet through the usual channels of trade in recent months owing to the unusually low prices at home and the largely increased production.

Insects In Stored Grain.

Methods of controlling insects injurious to stored grain include preventive and insecticidal measures. Among the first the United States department entomologist recommends early harvesting and thrashing. As a remedy the bisulphide of carbon treatment is stated to be the simplest, most effective and least expensive remedy for all insects that affect stored cereals.

News and Notes.

If all we hear is true, honey will be abundant and bees plenty.

Celery grown by the new method of close planting in beds, to render it self blanching, requires very rich soil and plenty of water. Pour the latter on the soil, not on the plants.

There is a big wheat crop, with a comparatively new market developed for the surplus of our country. Nearly 20 per cent of the wheat crop raised in the Pacific coast states last year was exported to China and Japan. It is predicted that this trade will soon absorb the entire wheat surplus of the coast states. All the foreign advisers agree that there is less wheat affect for England at the present time than at any previous time in the past ten years.

A shortage of hops is indicated, notably in England.

It appears that there is a slight decrease in the acreage of rye this year in comparison with last.

Corn oil, or maize oil, probably the most important addition to the series of vegetable oils, is essentially a product of American origin.

QUEEREST OF WILLS.

He Expected to Be Translated to Heaven at a Certain Date—Not Having Realized His Anticipated Flight Toward He Left His Estate to His Wife.

Probably the only will ever written in which the Lord is made one of the chief devisees is on record in the office of the clerk of the Wayne county court, Kentucky. It is the last will and testament of J. A. J. Mickel, a well to do but rather eccentric farmer who died not far from the town of Monticello about three years ago.

The will was made and written the hand of the deceased on the 9th day of December, 1878, under most peculiar circumstances and conditions. According to the history of the case, as related by some of the most reliable people of Wayne county, Mr. Mickel, who was a devout church member and close student of the Bible, concluded that Nov. 13, 1878, he was to be taken up to heaven—translated—like the prophet of old. The language of the will would indicate that Mr. Mickel expected the end of the world to come on that day, but in his conversations with his friends and members of his family he left the impression that the phenomenon was a matter personal to himself. They ridiculed the old gentleman's vagaries, but he would not be laughed out of his ideas and made full and complete preparations for his transit from earth to heaven. On the 9th of the fated month he made and recorded the following will:

Now, in accordance with the dictates of my conscience as a sane man, this day being the 9th day of November, 1878, I do now make and draw with my own hand this, my last will and testament, agreeable to the circumstances hereinafter mentioned—to-wit:

First, if, according to the calculations from the Bible, the day of translation occurs on the 13th of the present month, my will is that all of my possessions be bequeathed to my wife, for her support, provided that I am found worthy to be translated without her. But if we are both found worthy and pass away and leave all, I then bequeath all my possessions to him who gave them to me, excepting all the dues from all people to me of every description, such as notes, accounts, loans, or anything in their hands belonging to me, which I freely forgive them, for Christ's sake. Given under my hand and seal of office, as above mentioned.

J. A. J. MICKEL.

Mr. Mickel, having made his will and completed all other arrangements for his departure, calmly awaited the day for his translation. Old citizens say that the 13th of November, when it came around, was one of the gloomiest, most threatening and uncanny ever seen. The clouds hung low and heavy and there was an ominous stillness in the air which seemed to prestage the supernatural. Some of the superstitious who had been somewhat impressed with Mr. Mickel's predictions really began to look for something terrible to happen. Mr. Mickel, however, was disappointed. The Lord was not ready for him, and the old gentleman remained on earth nearly 15 years longer. Whether or not his disappointment caused him to take up a dislike for his Creator or whether he changed his mind about his wife unknown, but some time prior to his death he wrote a codicil to his will outlining his Creator out of everything. The codicil is as follows:

This is my first codicil: As my wife is the only other person interested in this matter, I will that she, being fully acquainted with my affairs, be appointed executrix of my estate, to manage it herself, with the aid of the witnesses hereto, for her support through life. Written with my own hand, but not so steady as formerly. Aug. 21, 1893.

She Asks $5,000 For Being Struck.

Ethel M. Harris, a young colored woman, has instituted suit in the circuit court, Parkersburg, W. Va., against General C. C. Watts, recently the Democratic candidate for governor, for $5,000 damages for assault. The bill has not been filed, so the exact charges cannot be given. General Watts was seen in regard to the matter and said that the girl, who was a domestic in his house, had struck his 7-year-old son a severe blow on the arm with a stick. Hearing of the matter he went into the kitchen to remove the girl, who he thought was drunk and threatened to have her arrested if he did not find her. After the girl had been removed she slapped the boy's face and then attempted to strike him with the stick. The boy was taken to the hospital and the girl was released. The case is now pending in court.

He Had No Support His Wife.

Justice Russell in the supreme court, New York, the other day decided that a boy who married under the age of consent was not legally bound to support his wife. The matter came up in the application for counsel fees and alimony of Mrs. Louis Rice pending the trial of her suit for divorce. Her husband, who is 17 years old, is suing through his father for annulment of the marriage.

Justice Russell holds that on account of Rice's age no marriage was legally contracted, and that he is not under obligation to support his wife.

Divided.

Sweetheart, when you walk my way—
Be it rain or be it day,
Worry winter, fairy May—
I shall know and greet you!

For each day of grief or grace
Embrace you nearer my embrace.
Love hath fashioned your dear face—
I shall know you when I meet you!

I have known your touch, your tone,
All the years I walked alone.
Still in life or death, my own,
I shall know and greet you!

Though the black night be not risen,
Though no light of love be given,
Here or in the courts of heaven,
I shall know you when I meet you!

A HANDLESS EDITOR.

Artificial Hands Serve Him as Well as Real Ones.

Alkama can boast of an editor of a daily newspaper who is minus both hands, yet writes practically all the copy that is printed in his paper.

The march of science and invention and the energy of William J. Blan, editor of the Troy (Ala.) Daily Messenger, have combined to produce this apparent phenomenon.

Mr. Blan served in the Confederate army and came through without a wound. But 12 years ago a Confederate veteran's reunion was held at Troy, and among other things the old ex-soldiers indulged in a sham battle. Mr. Blan was detailed to load and fire one of the cannons. During the mock battle the cannon exploded prematurely, and the heavy charge of powder and wadding blew both of his hands off—the left just above the wrist, the other several inches farther up the arm.

At this time Mr. Blan was owner of The Weekly Messenger, which he had bought in 1873 and had succeeded in putting on its feet by hard work. He had a large family of young children, and, like all other newspaper people in this part of the land, he had lived pretty well up to his income. He knew no line of business excepting newspaper work, and a man without either hand is ordinarily not very available about a newspaper office. He determined not to allow his usefulness to depart with the loss of his hands, however, and as soon as he had recovered sufficiently from his injuries to give the matter his attention he had made an artificial right hand and a half forearm.

It is a simple but ingenious contrivance. The artificial part of the arm is arranged so as to be securely fastened to the stump of the right arm left by the explosion. The hand, which is covered by a glove, appears perfectly natural in shape and holds a pen or pencil as gracefully as any editor's natural hand. A stranger seeing Mr. Blan at work at his desk would never imagine that the hand was not a real one, with blood circulating through it, so thoroughly has the editor got its operations under his control.

By means of a cord, which passes from his artificial arm up his right coat sleeve, then across his back, then down his left coat sleeve to the end of the remainder of his left arm, Mr. Blan is enabled to close the fingers of his artificial hand and grasp his pen. By keeping his left elbow bent the tension on the string is continued and the artificial fingers hold the pen tightly, while the editor controls its course over the white paper by a movement of the upper arm and shoulder. By this means Mr. Blan has learned to write with the greatest ease, and more rapidly and legibly than the average man of his age who has two good hands. For ten years he has written with this mechanical hand practically all of the editorials and a very large amount of the local and advertising matter that has gone into his paper. About six years ago Mr. Blan developed his weekly into a daily and has been successful beyond his expectations. The daily entailed more work, but the editor and the artificial hand proved equal to the emergency.—Chicago Times-Herald.

None but Union Shoes May Tramp.

The Chicago Federation of Labor has just granted a somewhat remarkable request of the boot and shoe workers. The delegates from that union asked the adoption of a resolution precluding all but wearers of union label shoes from participation in the coming Labor day parade. When the entire seriousness of the request was realized, it was granted, and all wearers of nonunion shoes will be required by an appointed committee to fall out of line next Labor day. The affair has given rise to some talk as to the union label. The Eight Hour Herald (Labor), Chicago, says: "We hasten to congratulate the shoe workers on their new-born zeal in support of the union label. As we have remarked in these columns on numberless occasions, the union label is worthy of all the attention that workingmen can give it. It is a weapon which if properly used will work tremendous benefits to the cause of organized labor. It is more effective than the strike or the boycott. The shoe workers should see to it that the public is made familiar with the list of firms handling union made shoes, or at least that the list should be made accessible to all interested in the matter."—Public Opinion.

Where Women Are Supreme.

Miss Taylor, a young English woman who recently returned from Tibet and is now gathering missionary recruits for that mysterious country, says that men and women who understand medicine will be most successful in that field. The knowledge of drugs, she adds, among the natives is almost equal to that of the English themselves. The position of women, according to Miss Taylor, is higher in Tibet than in any other country of the orient, save perhaps Mongolia. In place of polygamy, so common among the Mohammedans, polyandry rules in Tibet, a woman being married as a rule to all the brothers of a family. In consequence of the nomadic character of the people, usually only one husband is at home at a time, the others being absent in more or less distant parts selling the products of their lands. Women in Tibet, Miss Taylor asserts, are never punished—fact to which she attributes the saving of her life on several occasions.—New York Tribune.

An Even Thing.

My winter girl is far away
At Stomach-by-the-Sea.
In blue and gray and ribbon gray
She thinks no more of me.
My winter girl, I'm much afraid,
Is some one else's summer maid.

And here upon the mountain side
I spend my summer days
And walk and flirt and chat and ride
Through wooded mountain ways,
For some one's winter girl, you see,
Is playing summer girl for me.

—New York Journal.

Number of Newspapers Published.

A recent statistical estimate places the number of newspapers which are annually printed at the enormous figure of 12,000,000,000. A mathematician, apparently with considerable time at his disposal, in order to give a more comprehensive idea of this number, has calculated that a surface of 30,000 square kilometers could be covered with these papers. The paper alone weighs 781,240 tons. In case one machine was forced to print these millions at the rate of one a second 388 years would be necessary. Placed one upon another the papers would reach to the height of 80,000 meters. Assuming that a person devotes five minutes a day to reading his paper, the time used by the entire population of the world in reading newspapers each year amounts to 100,000 years.—New York Tribune.

The Country's Population, 77,000,000.

The latest official estimate of the population of the United States is 77,000,000.

This was made recently by the actuary of the treasury, an officer whose duty it is, at fixed intervals, to report on the per capita circulation of money in the United States. He estimates that the present holdings of money are $22.58 for every man, woman and child in the United States.

His estimate of the population is made by the use of the census reports for the preceding decade. Certain fixed rules of increase by birth and immigration and provision for deaths and other losses are made, and the resulting estimate is accepted as official.

Proof Against Snake Poison.

Recent experiments have proved that animals may be rendered artificially immune from snake poison. Large animals destined to produce antivenomous serum are injected from the outset with gradually increasing quantities of the venom of the cobra mixed with diminishing quantities of 1 to 60 solution of hypochlorite of lime. When an animal has acquired a sufficient immunity, the venoms from a large number of different species of snakes are injected. The treatment must last at least 15 months before the serum is sufficiently active to be used for the purpose of treatment. A large number of animals have been vaccinated by this method at the Pasteur institute at Lille during the past three years.

GOOD PROTECTION

Afforded the Big Crowd Yesterday by the Police.

THERE WAS BUT ONE CASE

Of Pocketpicking Reported, and Two Suspects Were Captured—Stolen Silverware Identified—Other News.

Many people who have been in Lima for years state that the largest crowd that was ever in the city at one time was here yesterday. It is also safe to assume that there never was a circus day in Lima with a crowd anywhere near as large as that of yesterday that was better managed by the police than the one attracted by Col. Cody's rough riders of the world, and contrary to the custom of former administrations, not a special policeman was called into service. Only the members of the regular force were on duty during the entire day and evening and no trouble worthy of mention occurred.

The police were always to be found where the crowds were the largest and the numerous crooks who were in the city were almost constantly under police surveillance. Detective Rogers, of the Pinkerton agency, who travels with Col. Cody, was of valuable service to the local officers and more than one long fingered sneak was pointed out by him and watched.

The only case of pocketpicking that was reported to the police occurred on the show grounds about 9 o'clock last night. A young man named Joseph Conklin, who lives on the Faurot farm, was standing in a crowd just outside the side show tent when two strangers, who pretended to be intoxicated, attracted his attention to themselves while a third party relieved the young man of an open-faced silver watch. As soon as the loss was discovered Conklin reported it to policemen O'Brien and Goebel, and two young men who have been identified by Conklin as two of the crowd were captured and locked up. The watch, however, has not been found. The prisoners gave their names as Ben Dean and Frank Johnson, of Ft. Wayne.

FOUND THE RIG.

Proprietor Edman, of the livery stable at the rear of Duffield's grocery, returned from Delphos this morning with the horse and buggy which were stolen Monday. The thief had sold the horse to a farmer for $20 and left the buggy and harness at a livery barn in Delphos. Mr. Edman paid a portion of the loss to the man who had purchased the animal.

STOLEN SILVERWARE.

About $30 worth of silverware that was found by policeman Conway hidden in an old barn at the extreme north end of Main street, was identified to-day by Mr. and Mrs. David Jones, of Columbus Grove. Their residence was robbed about three weeks ago while they were at Atlantic City. The most valuable portion of the stolen goods is still missing.

FOUND HIS RIG.

Last night a farmer named Myers, living near Hume, reported that he had lost his horse and buggy, but from his appearance the police doubtless decided that the horse and buggy had lost him. The rig was found near the show grounds.

SMALL FIRE

Extinguished by the South Side Department this Afternoon.

About 1 o'clock this afternoon fire was discovered in the basement of the Napier block, on east Kibby street and the south side department was called out. A line of hose was laid, but the fire was extinguished by the use of a chemical apparatus and no water was thrown.

The fire is thought to have originated from a spark from a locomotive, as the building is quite near the C. H. & D. track.

O'CONNELL IS GONE.

Broke His Irons and Escaped from the City Workhouse.

Mike O'Connell, who was arrested Monday night and sentenced to five days in the city workhouse for creating a disturbance at the Oak, was this morning among the missing. Instead of breaking stone in the workhouse he broke his ankle irons and made his escape. The police are looking for him, and if caught he will serve double time for his act.

O'Connell had almost served his sentence and he left more than money enough at the police station to pay for the irons he destroyed in making his escape.

YODER'S SENSATION.

Report That He Will Spring One at Springfield.

The Cleveland Plain Dealer of to-day says: "The annual encampment of the Union Veterans' Union opened in Springfield, O., yesterday with not over 1,000 veterans present, whereas fully 4,000 had been expected. The national officers claim that the deficiency in members is due to the failure of the railroads to give them promised rates. Ex-Congressman S. S. Yoder, of Lima, promises to spring a sensation in the convention to-day."

ANOTHER VICTIM

Of Summer Complaint Claimed by Death Yesterday.

Irelas, the two year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Leasure, of 548 west Elm street, died at 3:15 o'clock yesterday afternoon from summer complaint.

G. E. BLUM,

"Tennessee's Pardner"—a deal of humor, touches of pathos, strong situations. A heart story, likened to "Shore Acres," "Sue," "In Missouri," and "Alabama." A simple, straightforward story, stirring only the best emotions, and depicted by a good company Friday night.

No Tea Store Excursion via C. H. & D.

There will be no tea store excursion to Toledo, Friday, August 20th, over the C. H. & D. Ry.

Chicago Times-Herald.

"Tennessee's Pardner" is making a decided hit. It is a delightfully simple and pretty story of mining life, on the order of "Alabama" and "Shore Acres."

The Hoover family reunion is being held to day at Huntville.

The Lima ball club play at Piqua to-morrow. Sunday the Wapak boys will be here again.

Col. W. K. Boone has received a commission to serve on the staff of Capt. Gen. Brownwell, of the Grand Commandery Knights Templar of Ohio, at the state encampment to be held in Toledo, September 8th, 9th and 10th. Shawnee commandery will attend the encampment in a body.

The following from the Chillicothe paper will be of interest to the many friends of Mr. and Mrs. James Dietrich: "A baby boy was born yesterday to Mrs. James Dietrich, of Lima, who is visiting her mother, Mrs. Mary T. McCorry, of east Water street. Mrs. Dietrich and the baby are doing exceptionally well, and a telegram, apprising Mr. Dietrich that he was a papa, was forwarded to Lima last evening."

A CHARMING PLAY.

A Heart Story of the Hills.

"Tennessee's Pardner," a drama suggested by Bret Harte's sketch of that name, comes to the opera house to-morrow (Friday) night. It is one of the few western dramas that truthfully illustrate the rugged honesty and bravery and loyalty of the men who flocked to the mining camps of Nevada in the palmy days of '63-'64. Though the scenes of the play are laid in a mining camp in the west there is no suggestion about it of the usual order of mining camp drama. It is all played in the suppressed, gentle style in keeping with the characterization of the story. A company of unusual ability will interpret the story.
